Meningitis PCR (Bacterial Panel & Viral Panel)

Meningitis is a serious & often fatal infection. An early diagnosis can reduce mortality as well as post-meningitis neurological sequelae. Gram stain & culture are the mainstay of laboratory diagnosis till recent time, but suffer from lack of sensitivity & time required for results. The use of PCR for the rapid diagnosis of meningitis has potential to overcome the poor sensitivity of culture & gram stain, especially in cases where antimicrobial were administered prior to lumbar puncture.

Microbiological Laboratory has introduced two meningitis panels to help clinicians to confirm diagnosis of meningitis - one for bacteria & other for viruses. The bacterial panel will pick up all common pathogens including Neisseria meningitidis, Streptococcus pneumoniae & Haemophilus influenzae. The viral panel will detect Herpes Simplex Virus, Varicella Zoster Virus, Cytomegalo Virus & Enterovirus which are the common cause of viral encephalitis.

If the samples are received before 11am, the results will be ready on the same day.
